

EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Most clubs and societies have an internal structure to organize the operations of the group. These structures usually consist of elected Executives and depending on the size, Boards of Directors. These governing bodies are usually elected into a term, semester or annual, position by club or society members.

Executive Officers and Boards of Directors can include as few - or as many positions as necessary for the successful organization of operations, communications and finances of the club or society. Below are two sample breakdowns, but feel free to get creative.
